Notes for JASPER CHITTICK:

Jasper and Andrew did go back to farming after the Civil War, after they married and started their families. Both listed farming as their occupations on the 1880 Census Record. (The reader needs to know that the 1890 Census was totally destroyed by fire and only fragments which a few states could reconstruct exist today). By 190, Jasper was living in Sedalia, IN where his three sons owned and operated the General Store, and Andrew J. Chittick lived in Rossville, IN where he owned and operated the Chittick Store and Bakery, with his partner, George Wotring, the baker. His home, still standing today, was a two-storey house with Victorian gingerbread trim one block west of Rossville Cemetery, on the north side of Delphi Rd. Our mother, Mary Rose remembers her grandfather as being an avid hunter and fisherman. Indeed he was on a fishing vacation when he died at age 85. He was an expert shot and loved going to the wood for squirrels, which he brought in skinned and ready for cooking. He was a talented musician, playing both the fiddle and the horn in the Rossville band. Our mother's favourite memory of him were the treats he always brought his grandchildren - treasured oranges and hard candy from his store. - Jo Ann (Rose) Bloodgood.
